

URDANETA CITY UNIVERSITY: ADVANCING SDG 2 THROUGH INTERVENTIONS TO PREVENT AND ALLEVIATE HUNGER AMONG STAFF

In line with the United Nations' Sustainable Development Goal 2 (Zero Hunger), which seeks to end hunger, achieve food security, improve nutrition, and promote sustainable agriculture, Urdaneta City University (UCU) continues to strengthen its initiatives to support the health and well-being of its personnel. The university recognizes that a healthy and nourished workforce is essential to sustaining academic excellence and effective public service.

UCU has taken proactive steps to provide interventions that prevent and alleviate hunger among staff. Affordable and nutritious meals are made readily available within campus food facilities to ensure that employees have access to balanced and reasonably priced food options. Menus are carefully curated to include healthy meal combinations that promote both physical and mental wellness.

Beyond daily food provisions, the university extends its compassion through food assistance and wellness programs. During times of crisis or economic difficulty, UCU provides relief packs and meal support to affected staff members. Such efforts reflect the university's commitment to ensuring that no one within its community experiences food insecurity or hunger.

In promoting a sustainable approach to nutrition, UCU also conducts health and nutrition education activities such as seminars, wellness campaigns, and workshops. These initiatives empower staff to make informed dietary choices and adopt healthy eating habits that contribute to their overall well-being. Additionally, the university promotes environmentally responsible practices, such as minimizing food waste and supporting local suppliers, aligning with SDG 2's goal of sustainable food systems.

Through these continuous interventions, Urdaneta City University upholds the spirit of SDG 2: Zero Hunger by ensuring equitable access to safe, nutritious, and sufficient food for its personnel. The university's commitment to preventing hunger among staff reflects its dedication to fostering a caring, resilient, and health-conscious campus community.

UCU firmly believes that addressing hunger is not only a matter of nourishment but also an act of social responsibility. By ensuring that its staff's basic needs are met, the university reinforces its vision of holistic human development and its mission to be a model of compassion, sustainability, and inclusive growth.
