

UNIVERSITY CONTRIBUTION TO LOCAL ARTS SUPPORTING SDG 11

The university actively supports and contributes to the enrichment of local arts and culture through its “annual public performances by university choirs, theater groups, dance troupes, and music ensembles”. These artistic activities embody the university’s commitment to fostering creativity, cultural appreciation, and community engagement, in alignment with Sustainable Development Goal (SDG) 11: Sustainable Cities and Communities.

By organizing and participating in concerts, stage plays, cultural festivals, and exhibitions, the university serves as a platform for students and local artists to showcase their talents and express cultural identity. These performances are often open to the public, allowing community members to experience and appreciate the arts without barriers.

Furthermore, the university collaborates with local cultural institutions, schools, and government offices to host outreach performances and joint events that strengthen cultural ties and promote inclusivity in the arts. Through these initiatives, the university not only enhances the cultural vitality of the community but also encourages youth participation and talent development in the creative sector.

By continuously supporting local arts, the university contributes to building a vibrant, inclusive, and culturally rich community, fully reflecting the spirit of SDG 11, which promotes sustainable and inclusive urban and community development through access to culture and heritage.
