

URDANETA CITY UNIVERSITY EXTENDS LEARNING BEYOND CAMPUS IN SUPPORT OF UN SDG 4

True to its mission of promoting inclusive and equitable quality education, Urdaneta City University (UCU) continues to advance the United Nations Sustainable Development Goal 4 (SDG 4) through its community outreach initiatives and lecture programs conducted beyond campus walls.

Recognizing that education should not be confined within the university setting, UCU actively reaches out to local schools and communities, bringing valuable lectures, seminars, and training sessions directly to learners where they are. These initiatives aim to foster lifelong learning opportunities, strengthen community engagement, and ensure that quality education remains accessible to all—especially those with limited access to formal learning institutions.

Through partnerships with barangays, public schools, and civic organizations, UCU faculty and student volunteers share their expertise in diverse fields such as digital literacy, environmental awareness, health education, leadership, and values formation. These community-based lectures not only expand academic learning but also nurture civic responsibility, empathy, and social awareness among UCU students—aligning with the university's vision of developing globally competitive and community-oriented graduates.

Each outreach activity embodies UCU's firm belief that education is a shared responsibility and a powerful tool for transformation. By extending its resources and knowledge to the wider community, UCU reinforces its role as a catalyst for positive change, ensuring that learning continues beyond the classroom.

In doing so, Urdaneta City University proudly champions SDG 4, transforming its educational mission into concrete action—empowering communities, inspiring learners, and building a future where quality education is truly for everyone.

MAKE SDG#4 A REALITY

URDANETA CITY UNIVERSITY EXTENDS LEARNING BEYOND CAMPUS IN SUPPORT OF UN SDG 4

True to its mission of promoting inclusive and equitable quality education, Urdaneta City University (UCU) continues to advance the United Nations Sustainable Development Goal 4 (SDG 4) through its community outreach initiatives and lecture programs conducted beyond campus walls.

Recognizing that education should not be confined within the university setting, UCU actively reaches out to local schools and communities, bringing valuable lectures, seminars, and training sessions directly to learners where they are. These initiatives aim to foster lifelong learning opportunities, strengthen community engagement, and ensure that quality education remains accessible to all—especially those with limited access to formal learning institutions.

Through partnerships with barangays, public schools, and civic organizations, UCU faculty and student volunteers share their expertise in diverse fields such as digital literacy, environmental awareness, health education, leadership, and values formation. These community-based lectures not only expand academic learning but also nurture civic responsibility, empathy, and social awareness among UCU students—aligning with the university's vision of developing globally competitive and community-oriented graduates.

Each outreach activity embodies UCU's firm belief that education is a shared responsibility and a powerful tool for transformation. By extending its resources and knowledge to the wider community, UCU reinforces its role as a catalyst for positive change, ensuring that learning continues beyond the classroom.

In doing so, Urdaneta City University proudly champions SDG 4, transforming its educational mission into concrete action—empowering communities, inspiring learners, and building a future where quality education is truly for everyone.

MAKE SDG#4 A REALITY

