

NSTP PROMOTES VALUES EDUCATION AND LIFELONG LEARNING AT P.T. ORATA NATIONAL HIGH SCHOOL

In support of Sustainable Development Goal 4 (Quality Education), Urdaneta City University (UCU) continues to bring learning beyond the classroom through community-based educational activities. On this occasion, Pastor Christopher Ian O. Bulac, NSTP Faculty, together with two student organization officers, served as resource speakers during the learning activity sessions for Grades 11 and 12 beneficiaries of P.T. Orata National High School.

Guided by Pastor Bulac, the NSTP students shared meaningful reflections on valuing the precious life that God has given, emphasizing the importance of nurturing life, showing compassion, and expressing love toward others. The discussion encouraged participants to develop emotional intelligence and moral sensitivity—key aspects of holistic education that go beyond academics.

To reinforce these lessons, an interactive activity was conducted, where students practiced expressing gratitude, affection, and forgiveness through simple yet powerful words—“thank you,” “I love you,” and “sorry.” The exercise fostered empathy and strengthened interpersonal connections among the students, promoting harmony and understanding within their school community.

Through this initiative, UCU demonstrates its ongoing commitment to advancing SDG 4 by delivering public lectures and community educational events that inspire lifelong learning, personal growth, and character development. The program reflects the university’s mission to shape not only skilled learners but also responsible and compassionate individuals who contribute positively to society.

MAKE SDG#4 A REALITY
