

REDUCING INEQUALITIES THROUGH FAIR ADMISSIONS: UPHOLDING SDG 10 IN HIGHER EDUCATION

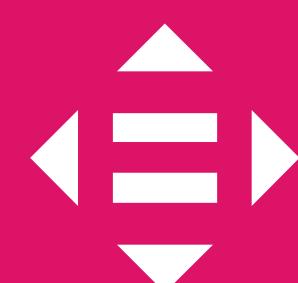

The pursuit of equality in education is central to the United Nations' Sustainable Development Goal 10 (SDG 10): Reduced Inequalities, which seeks to promote social, economic, and political inclusion for all, regardless of age, gender, disability, race, ethnicity, origin, or socio-economic status. Within this framework, universities play a vital role as agents of change, particularly through the implementation of non-discriminatory admissions policies that ensure fairness and inclusivity in access to higher education.

A fair and inclusive admissions policy guarantees that opportunities for education are based on merit, potential, and qualification rather than on personal or social circumstances. By maintaining and publicly posting such policies, universities demonstrate transparency, accountability, and a strong commitment to equality. This approach fosters trust among stakeholders and reinforces the idea that education is a right accessible to all, not a privilege reserved for a few.

REDUCING INEQUALITIES THROUGH FAIR ADMISSIONS: UPHOLDING SDG 10 IN HIGHER EDUCATION

At Urdaneta City University (UCU), this commitment to fairness and inclusivity is evident in its admissions practices. The university upholds a non-discriminatory admissions policy that ensures every aspiring student, regardless of background, has equal access to quality education. UCU recognizes the importance of education as a tool for empowerment and social mobility, aligning its principles with the global mission of SDG 10 to reduce inequalities within and among communities. Ultimately, a transparent and equitable admissions policy is more than an administrative procedure—it reflects the moral and ethical foundation of an institution. By championing fairness and inclusivity, Urdaneta City University not only strengthens its role as a center of learning but also contributes meaningfully to the global effort of building a more just and inclusive society. Through education that embraces equality, UCU exemplifies the spirit of SDG 10: Reduced Inequalities and continues to empower individuals to create positive change for the future.
