URDANETA CITY UNIVERSITY ADVANCES SDG 11 BY PROMOTING AFFORDABLE HOUSING FOR STUDENTS

Urdaneta City University (UCU) is taking proactive steps to support Sustainable Development Goal 11 (SDG 11), which focuses on making cities and human settlements inclusive, safe, resilient, and sustainable. One of the university's key initiatives in this area is the evaluation and promotion of affordable housing and dormitory options for its students. Recognizing that safe and accessible housing is critical for academic success and overall well-being, UCU is committed to assessing student accommodation needs, identifying gaps in availability, and recommending viable solutions that are cost-effective and sustainable.

Through this initiative, UCU not only seeks to reduce the financial burden on students but also aims to improve their access to housing near campus, thereby minimizing long commutes and enhancing campus engagement. The university considers various aspects in its evaluation, including affordability, safety, accessibility, and proximity to academic facilities. By recommending suitable housing or dormitory arrangements, UCU helps ensure that students can focus on their studies and fully participate in university life without facing housing insecurity.

Moreover, UCU's commitment aligns with the broader goals of SDG 11 by contributing to sustainable urban development. Safe, affordable, and well-located student housing reduces traffic congestion, lowers carbon emissions from long-distance commuting, and encourages more inclusive communities within Urdaneta City and surrounding areas in Pangasinan.

By integrating housing evaluation into its institutional policies and programs, UCU underscores its role in fostering a supportive, inclusive, and resilient environment for all students. This initiative demonstrates the university's dedication to social sustainability, highlighting how higher education institutions can contribute meaningfully to local development and the creation of equitable, livable communities.
